The Minimi Machine Gun (Modern Warfare)

Olivier Rosso : The Minimi Machine Gun (Modern Warfare) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Minimi Machine Gun (Modern Warfare):

The FNH Minimi light machine gun was initially developed to respond to the technological leap forward made by the Soviet PKM whose lightness was due to the way it was made, by stamping. Since 1974, because of its lightness and its firepower, FN Herstals light machine gun has illustrated how sound the concept of the direct infantry support weapon is and has been selected by more than 45 user countries and used in fifteen or so conflicts including two major ones: Iraq and Afghanistan. Like the German MG34/42 which founded the concept of the polyvalent machine gun and was given the nickname Hitlers saw, in 2010 the FNH Minimi is still the archetypal light machine gun and has earned a nickname: the free worlds saw.
